Work has been suspended on the eastern abutment of the railroad bridge at Limestone Creek. The contractors were driving piles yesterday, but the rise in the river filled the pit last night, and all work on that abutment will be delayed until the waters recede. The abutment on the west side of the creek is about half completed.

. LIVES OF PRESIDENTS.

MR. ARTHUR'S WAS NOT NEAR THE AVERAGE IN DURATION.

But a short space of Time Between the White House and the Grave—Only One Ex-President Living — Congressman Springer Interviewed on Politics.

Washingtons, Nov. 28.—Ex-President Arthur did not live out the average number of years allotted to ex-presidents. They are not a long-lived set of mon, for the strain upon the system of a man in the position of presidents very great. The strain is both physical and mental. It is a wear upon the body, the nerves, the similal and the violanch. To be the target for attack for every pennyalines for the strain of the country and every editorial writering to a morphope, is acought to drive away the features of life which tend to longerity. Then to undergo the duties of the position both as to estual work and the strain upon the nerver and mind, a enough to strain upon the nerver and mind, a enough to make a strain upon the nerver and mind, a enough to make the president of the position, late and hong suppers, high living turning night into day, it is no wonder that the president do not live long after their terms expire.

A few have lived a good long time after a contain your the relief from office as president, and died at the good old eage of ninety-one Fillmore lived twenty—Van Buren twenty-one years, Madison and Jefferson nineteen years each. But those were the good old days of simplicity. The everage term of life of presidents after leaving the White House is less than ten This death of Mr. Arthur leaves but one living expresident, Mr. Hayes. This has leaving the White House is less man ten years.

The death of Mr. Arthur leaves but one living ex-president, Mr. Hayes. This has happened but three times in the past-seventy-five years that there has been but one living ex-president. There have been two periods not a single ex-president being the period of sixteen months between Washington's decease and the time that his successor, John Adams, became expresident. Then there was a time during Grant's term, after the death of Johnson, that there was not a single ex-president living the success of the success that there was not a single ex-president living. The other hand, there have been occasion where we have had as many as four, and on one occasion five, living ex-presidents. On July 5, 1825, there were four living ex-presidents Adams, Jefferson, as is well known, passed away on the sine bedration of Independence. There was another occasion, in 1801, when there were five living ex-presidents, Buchana, Pierce, Fillioner, Tyler and Van Buren. This did not continue long, however, for Buchana had been an ex-president of the continue of the co sent but a few manness when both Van Buren and Typic died.
